The ASCC Cabinet discussed the move on the budget for clubs, the water proposal and the Students for Success Campaign during its meeting Monday.

It also discussed Hoe Down Days, involvement on campus from the Child Development and Auto Departments, Valentine's Day, Urinetown auditions and the Black Student Union talent show.

And in final news, the cabinet acknowledged:

- that there will be a DJ in the student center at 11 a.m. on Valentine's Day,
- the auditions for Urinetown (the Musical), which were held Feb. 5 at 6 p.m. in BC17 and
- the Black Student Union Talent Show who have a sign-up sheet at the Student Center for whoever wants to take part in the talent show.

The budget for the clubs was moved earlier this semester.

The reason behind the earlier budget move is, "Because we want to give the clubs more time to petition for more money and it gives us time to see what we can do earlier on," ASCC President Jason Macias said.

This will help clubs get the money they need sooner and it will give time for the ASCC to see what it can do about money issues.

The water proposal was also issued in this meeting. The Cabinet is thinking about getting 30 bottles of five-gallon water.

"This provides water for our staff and the members of the ASCC," Macias said.

The members of the ASCC include all currently enrolled students that have a current activities sticker.

In other news, ASCC Vice President Michael Barrita wants to establish a campaign for student success.

This will help new students coming out of high school and current students succeed in college.

The approach for this goal is to make up a brochure that will have information on:

- academics,
- economics,
- student support and
- student activities.

In the academics section it will include tips on how students can succeed in academics and what they have to do in order for students to

Senate fills three spots

Three new positions, one to the Cabinet and two to the Senate were appointed at last Wednesday's ASCC Senate meeting.

Trina Burch, physical education major, became Commissioner of the Vocational Outreach, while Jimmy Santana, political science major and Mariam Sohail, biology major, both were integrated into the Senate.

The majority of Senators also selected students as new commissioner and senators without any opposition.

In other business, the Senate chose a freshman senator for the Minority Leader seat and heard the announcement about the upcoming events happening in Cerritos College this month.

The newly appointed senators are both freshmen.

They are new to Cerritos College but hope to help better the community.

"It will be a great opportunity to bring up issues that are about students," Santana said.

Burch, having two AA degrees in Natural Science and General Studies, is an active member of the Disabled Students of Cerritos College, a historian for Child Development Club in Fall 2007, and attended a Leadership Conference last year.

"I am dedicated to the welfare of the vocational programs here at Cerritos College," Burch wrote in memo for her Appointment as Commissioner of Vocational Outreach.

There was no Minority Leader nominated when the meeting began, but soon all freshmen senators chose Castaneda to fill the seat.

Castaneda was not so surprised or worried of the responsibility laid on her but she did say, "It's great that we came second to California State Polytechnic University of Pomona in the blood drive."

Finally, the Red Cross will be here on Valentine's Day.

Splitting the president's position

TIM DICKERSON
Managing Editor
managing@talonmarks.com

A special election that will decide whether or not to have separate people serve as the Student Body President and Student Trustee position is taking place on Wednesday and Thursday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. and 5 p.m. to 8 p.m.

As the student government stands right now, the ASCC president is the Student Trustee.

According to ASCC President Jason Macias, "Most (colleges) in the area have (the positions) split."

"We're not following the Education Code properly."

In last Wednesday's Senate meeting, the ASCC voted, by a 14-9 margin, to split the position.

Some advantages of keeping them as one position are:

- there is no conflict between the positions,
- the ASCC president can provide a more accurate report to the Board of Trustees and
- lowering the requirement will mean that more students have the ability to get involved with student government.

"It makes student government more accessible," ASCC Vice President Michael Barrita said.

However, there are some disadvantages to splitting the positions. Most of them involve lowering the requirements to run for office.

- Some disadvantages are:
- the president and vice president do not have to be of sophomore standing to run,
- students running for office are allowed to have F grades in the previous semester and
- only a 2.0 GPA is required, rather than a 2.25.

"In keeping the position together, there won't be conflicts between the student trustee and president," Senator Jimmy Santana said.

Barrita added, "I wish the requirements would stay the same."

He said that to run for office, one would have to keep up with everything, so lowering the requirements wouldn't help.

Students will decide on the election dates on whether or not they want the positions to split.

One of the main advantages of splitting the positions is that the requirements to run for office remain as they are now.

The requirements to run right now and if the positions are split later are:

- students need at least a 2.25 GPA,
- students need 500 valid signatures,
- students need a sophomore status,
- students may not have received an F the previous semester and
- students need to show their valid ASCC membership sticker.

Disadvantages of splitting the positions are:

- there may be conflicts and opinion differences between the president and trustee and
- trustees are not limited to six semesters.

"(The Student Trustee is) not going to have the same connection with students," Barrita said.

However, if the split happens, one student may still run for both positions.

Clinton holds rally at CSULA

Democratic party nominee hopeful Sen. Hillary Rodham Clinton spoke to a crowd of more than 10,000 about her presidential platform at a rally last Saturday at Cal State University Los Angeles.

The senator addressed the majority of the crowd inside the gymnasium of the campus along with a few of her supporters including:

- Los Angeles Mayor Antonio Villaraigosa,
- Congresswoman Maxine Waters,
- Oakland Mayor Ron Dellums and

- East Los Angeles Supervisor Gloria Molina.
- Hollywood insiders, including the likes of actresses, America Ferrera and Sally Fields, spoke for and gave their support to the campaign of the presidential hopeful.

"We need Senator Clinton in the White House tomorrow," Fields told the roaring crowd. "And I'm supporting Hillary because she's fighting for a system where our schools are shinier than our missiles."

Clinton reassured the crowd of her stance on key issues, in a last ditch effort to conjure up as many votes in her favor as possible, before California's primary on Tuesday.

- Clinton promised:
- to end the nation's dependence

- on oil,
- a moratorium on home foreclosures,
- to freeze interest rates,
- affordable college to every child and
- universal health care.

"Some people running for office think only about the next election. I'm thinking about the next generation," she told the crowd.

Clinton received very receptive responses from the largely student based crowd when she spoke of issues that directly affected them and other young voters.

The Senator promised to end predatory lending aimed at college students and more job training and apprenticeship programs for "green collar" workers.

"If you take a public service job we should forgive your college debt," she explained. The public service jobs included, but were not limited to teachers and police officers.

Also receiving much enthusiasm from the energetic rally-goers was Clinton's proposal to take care of troops returning home from the Iraq war, by implementing a 21st Century G.I. Bill of Rights.

The updated proposed bill would offer educational support to veterans and their families.

Clinton promised, if elected president of the United States, to devise a plan to bring troops home, within 60 days of her inauguration.

Political Science, Journalism team up for project, MyDemocracy

HECTOR COLCHADO
Staff Writer
hcolchado8@talonmarks.com

The contest awards winners with class credit, cash prizes, or publication.

The Political Science and Journalism Departments have teamed up to initiate the MyDemocracy contest that gives students enrolled in Political Science 101 the chance at winning for their creativity.

Students that enter the contest have the opportunity to record, draw, act, interview, role-play, or perform for their video and give their views about democracy or political science.

Not only do students have the chance to experiment with multimedia but have the chance to teach other students about social and democratic issues.

"Students get to see others work; it's a political outlet to express political views," Bryan Reece, political science instructor, said.

The video's message can be on various social topics. However, there are a few rules.

- The competitors must:
- Select a topic relating to democracy or political science,
 - create a video editorial two to three minutes in length,
 - produce a serious or comical video editorial,
 - compose within the campus student conduct policy,
 - not use copyrighted material,
 - submit the video to www.youtube.com and
 - turn the project before the deadline, April 21.

"Students in my Political Science 101 classes have the option, MyDemocracy may replace an assignment. But it can be different for other political science classes. They have a monetary compensation if they win," said Sunday Obazuaye, political science professor.

First place winner receives $500, second place winner receives $250, third place winner receives $150 and the fan favorite winner receives $100.

The videos of contestants also have the chance to go up on the MyDemocracy Web site or even the possible chance to be published on sites such as MSNBC On Campus or MyPolSciLab.

The project also revolves around a class, Journalism 106: talonmarks.com, that will help students create and edit their video.

"We encourage Journalism 106," Obazuaye said. "This will give students the opportunity to learn from technology."

Linda Bender, anthropology instructor and Amara Aguilar, journalism instructor, will teach the class in FA 42.

"The class will help students showcase production skills and multimedia skills," Reece said.

Cabinet: Brochures for students

succeeded in school.

The brochure will also include a section on economics which will help students learn how they can get jobs on campus and information on scholarships and the Board of Governors Grant.

The third section will be student support which will inform students on how they can get help on campus like the math center, writing center, Project H.O.P.E. and other help facilities located on campus.

The final section will be about Student Activities. This will have information about the ASCC, the different clubs Cerritos College has to offer and how students can get involved on campus.

"The brochure's [purpose] is to make students more aware of what goes on around campus," Barrita said. "This is a way the ASCC is taking an active role on student life."

The Child Development and Auto Departments would like to be more informed and have a chance to be involved on the Falcon Square side of campus.

Since the Child Development and Auto Departments are not close to Falcon Square and the Student Center, the departments would like to be informed on activities going on so their students can get involved.

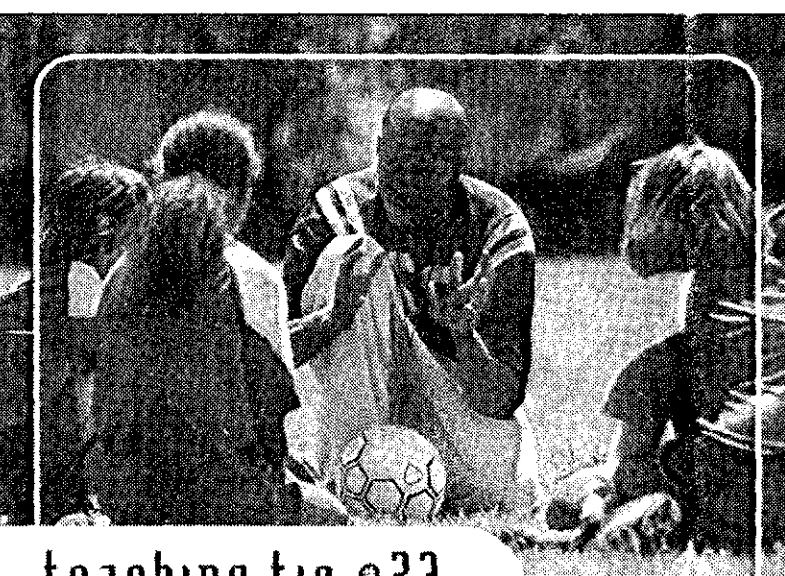

Barrita suggests on setting up a special e-mail address to give them information about what events are happening on campus and to have a direct way to inform the two departments on school activities

Black history is American history

History lives every day, not just 28.

What was meant to be a celebration of the contributions of blacks to American society has become a ritual that has been segregated to one month, February, the shortest of them all.

There is no way that the entire history of blacks and their contributions to the American society can be well appreciated in 28 days.

Unfortunately, U.S. society tries to do so on a yearly basis.

There is more to black history than George Washington Carver discovering ways to use peanuts, Martin Luther King Jr. having a dream and Abraham Lincoln supposedly freeing the slaves.

More education about black history needs to be taught at the K-12 levels.

Teachers must take it upon themselves to incorporate black history into their curriculum.

The publishers and writers of history books must be pressured into assimilating the culture and history of all ethnicities and races of America into the textbooks.

But this shouldn't be exclusive to just blacks.

No matter the different races and ethnicities, we all have experienced discrimination and mistreatment in some form or fashion from white America.

All of the races and ethnicities that make the U.S. have contributed to this country's founding and molding and deserve, at the very minimum, for their history to be discussed throughout the entire year.

Even at the community college level, more can be done to make this a reality in the U.S.

Even though there are classes that include some form of Black History such as History 201, which merely touches on slavery in the colonial era and Humanities 108 (Black Images in Pop Culture).

There is another level that the history can be taught.

A more insightful history on minorities will give those who take this course a more profound appreciation of the significance of minorities and immigrants here in America.

A class that talks about the many cultures and their contributions to U.S. history can be incorporated.

Maybe the class can be named "U.S. Multicultural History 101."

It may seem idealistic, but it can happen if enough representation of all races and ethnicities demand that their stories and history of their people are told to all of those who seek an optimal vision on life and the struggles it brings.

Black history is perpetual and it should not start or end when February does.

Every month should be Black History Month.

Every month should celebrate unity between all: blacks, whites and everyone in between.

We should especially recognize those whose journeys have brought forth equality for all.

Everyday, we, as a society, need to celebrate and recognize the contributions and cultures of the many different races and ethnicities.

Hard to buy, but harder to sell

The prices for some books are way too high, especially for a one-time use.

Expenses come in different ways, but never did I think my books were going to be so much, until the day I stepped into college.

My books in high school were around $30 at the most.

So, try to imagine my face when I saw that a simple math book would cost me $170.

I flipped. The price was outrageous.

I remember not buying any of my books that day because I didn't have enough money to do so.

I seriously think the prices for some books are ridiculous, especially for a one-time use.

Sure, there are the used ones, but there's only a limited amount that very few students here at the college are able to enjoy at the low price.

These books are on a first come, first served basis.

A task as simple as buying books should not be that difficult for anybody.

However, it happens to be for some families.

There is financial aid available to help some, but what happens to those that do not qualify for it?

They are stuck and stranded without any help.

I guess that is why they have that saying "tough luck."

They are still in need of money to buy these expensive books.

They have no options if they wish to succeed in their classes.

I have known students that pay up to $500 in books alone, and that is just way too much, especially when there are other expenses to pay such as gas, tuition, parking, bills.

Then there is the other issue of selling back your books.

I know I am not the only one who has noticed with disgust that you get four dollars on a brand new book you originally bought for $20.

Now who can explain that mess?

Why are books an issue and a roadblock to succeed in school and yet alone attend?

There is hope however.

I was happy to that hear ASCC President Jason Macias and Vice President Michael Barrita are planning to do some sort of book exchange program where you buy books for cheaper from other students and get more money back when you sell them back to other students.

Almost everyone is satisfied with this plan, well except the business the bookstore will lose, I imagine.

I know this type of program will be greatly appreciated by other students as well as by me.

Cosmetology program makes dreams reality

Doing hair: Cosmetology students try out a few hair styles on manichans. Students in the program learn how to cut, color, perm, straighten and braid hair along with other applications and techniques.

Located in the Health Science Building on the second floor right in between the nursing floors are people who are dedicated to learning skills that help make others feel good about themselves.

Students and instructors in the cosmetology program consider it to be an exhilarating experience and say that this helps give them compassion.

Jeanne Johnson, cosmetology instructor, has been teaching in the department for 35 years.

She is one of the six full-time professors. The others include:

- Nina Motruk,
- Pat Noeinaski,
- Erlinda Chavez,
- Brenda White and
- Felicia Smith.

Johnson said that she loves doing what she does.

She knew that cosmetology was her calling ever since she was a little girl, since her own mom was a hair dresser, as well.

She says the cosmetology program offers the exact education that students would get at a trade school, except it is cheaper.

A total of $1,500 includes the kit and the books. Students in the cosmetology program also suggest that those who want to enroll for the cosmetology program in the summer should apply for financial aid now.

A lot of the students love and have the passion for this kind of work, such as Vicky Sluder who is a wife and mother in addition to being a cosmetology student.

Sluder formerly worked in the corporate world.

She said that her job was going to be transferred to a different location, so she decided that this was her chance to take up something that she was most passionate about.

She's now been in the cosmetology program since the spring of 2007. She said that she absolutely loves it and loves the feeling she gets while cutting and coloring a customers hair.

Sluders also enjoys knowing that her daughter is a hair dresser as well and when Sluder graduates from the program and gets her cosmetology license she knows that she will have the opportunity to own a hair salon with her daughter.

But women aren't the only participants in the program.

There are also males who enroll into the cosmetology program as well.

One of them is Chrisoffe Sato, cosmetology major, who always loved the thought of pursuing cosmetology as a career, since the very first time he held a brush.

He is currently at 100 hours toward the 1600 hours needed to graduate. He said he loves cosmetology and everything about it.

The cosmetology program even has a ROP program for high school seniors who are wanting to take up cosmetology. It will introduce to them to what the school offers.

STUDENT HEALTH SERVICES

We are caring, sensitive, and understanding of student needs.

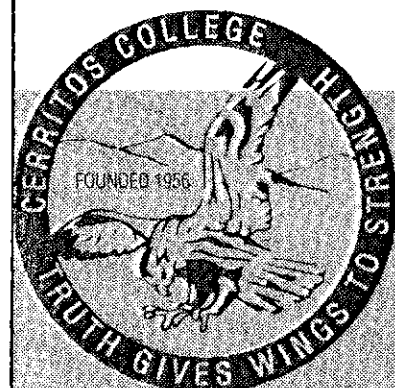

Our mission is to strengthen student learning and student success by providing quality health care services to a multi cultural population through the promotion of health education, prevention and wellness.

We offer walk-in service and appointments for the following needs:

- » Physical exams and sports exams
- » Women's health including annual gynecological exams, family planning, pregnancy testing, contraception, sexually transmitted disease and other problems.
- » Immunizations
- » Medical consultations
- » Men's health including exams, contraception, sexually transmitted disease and testicular and prostate problems.
- » Pharmacy services
- » Laboratory services
- » Chiropractor/Acupuncture
- » Optometry
- » Mental health needs and referrals

Most services free of charge or with low cost such as laboratory fees, optometry. List of charges in clinic.

Our student health center offers preventive health care which includes routine care for students and staff with acute minor illness and injuries. Our center is funded with student fees and Cerritos College funding and follows all the guidelines of the Department of Public Health Services in regards to strict confidentiality and care of each patient.

We are located on the southeast corner of campus
Hours of operation: Monday - Friday 8:00am to 4:00pm

MULTIPLE CHOICE

Sometimes multiple choices are easier, sometimes not. Here are some well-known lines from our favorite flicks. Can you choose who said it?

1. "It's not that bad. ... Well, I'm not saying I'd like to build a summer home here, but the trees are actually quite lovely."

- A. Cary Elwes as Robin Hood in "Robin Hood: Men in Tights" (1993)
B. Joaquin Phoenix as Lucius Hunt in "The Village" (2004)
C. Cary Elwes as Westley in "The Princess Bride" (1987)
D. Tom Hanks as Chuck Noland in "Cast Away" (2000)

2. "This sucks. I didn't hook up with one European chick while I was here. Europe is officially the worst country in the world."

- A. Jacob Pitts as Cooper Harris in "Eurotrip" (2004)
B. Jason Lively as Russell "Rusty" Griswold in "European Vacation" (1985)
C. Leonardo DiCaprio as Frank Abagnale Jr. in "Catch Me If You Can" (2002)
D. Breckin Meyer as Josh Parker in "Road Trip" (2000)

3. "It's not the years, honey. It's the mileage."

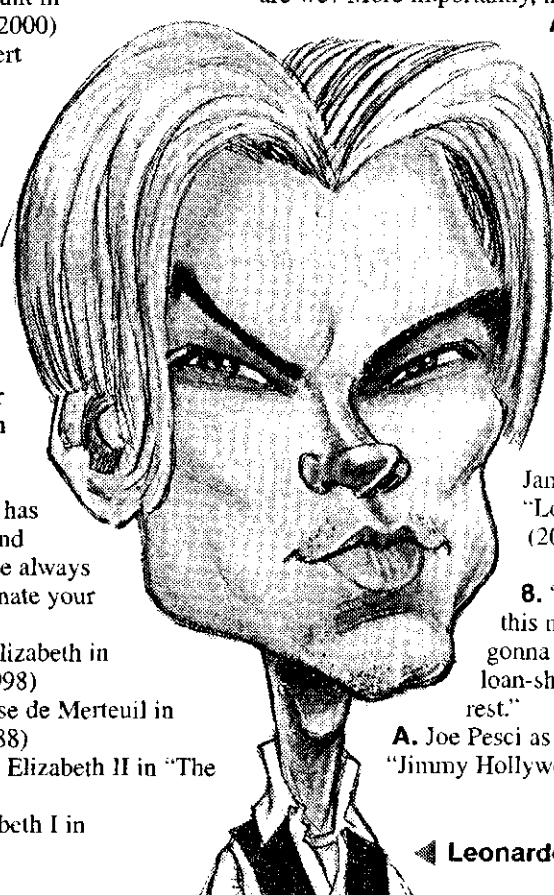

- A. Harrison Ford as Jack Traven in "Working Girl" (1988)
B. Harrison Ford as Han Solo in "Star Wars" (1977)
C. Harrison Ford as Indiana Jones in "Raiders of the Lost Ark" (1981)
D. Harrison Ford as Rick Deckard in "Blade Runner" (1982)

4. "It's not what you know, it's what you can prove."

- A. Matt Damon as Jason Bourne in "The Bourne Ultimatum" (2007)
B. Tom Cruise as Ethan Hunt in "Mission: Impossible II" (2000)
C. Tom Hanks as Dr. Robert Langdon in "The Da Vinci Code" (2006)
D. Denzel Washington as Alonzo Harris in "Training Day" (2001)

5. "Well I had no choice, did I? I'm a woman. Women are obliged to be far more skillful than men. You can ruin our reputation and our life with a few well-chosen words. So of course I had to invent not only myself but ways of escape no one has every thought of before. And I've succeeded because I've always known I was born to dominate your sex and avenge my own."

- A. Judi Dench as Queen Elizabeth in "Shakespeare in Love" (1998)
B. Glenn Close as Marquise de Merteuil in "Dangerous Liaisons" (1988)
C. Helen Mirren as Queen Elizabeth II in "The Queen" (2006)
D. Cate Blanchett as Elizabeth I in "Elizabeth" (1998)

We love our movies. And we love them even more when we can quote them.

We quote them to our spouses ("Frankly, my dear, I don't give a damn."), our friends ("I see you're drinking 1 percent. Is that 'cause you think you're fat? 'Cause you're not. You could be drinking whole if you wanted to."), our co-workers ("We need to talk about your TPS reports.") and even our kids ("The time has come for someone to put his foot down. And that foot is me.")

How well do you know your movie lines? Take our quiz, three ways, and find out. Why three ways? If we can get "beef, three ways" at trendy restaurants, we figure we can serve you three ways to test your knowledge and prove you are "the master."

6. "Right now everything is great, everyone is happy, everyone is in love and that's wonderful. But you gotta know that sooner or later you're gonna be screaming at each other about who's gonna get this dish. This $8 dish will cost you a thousand dollars in phone calls to the legal firm of That's Mine, This Is Yours."

- A. Judd Nelson as Alec Newbary in "St. Elmo's Fire" (1985)
B. Meg Ryan as Kate McKay in "Kate & Leopold" (2001)
C. Joe Mantegna as Andy in "Forget Paris" (1995)
D. Billy Crystal as Harry Burns in "When Harry Met Sally" (1989)

7. "We're not playing Spin the Bottle; how old are we? More importantly, how old are they?"

- A. Zach Braff as Andrew Largeman in "Garden State" (2004)
B. Annette Bening as Carolyn Burnham in "American Beauty" (1999)
C. Claire Danes as Sue Kie Saperstein in "Igby Goes Down" (2002)
D. Colin Firth as Jamie Bennett in "Love Actually" (2003)

8. "Rough business, this movie business. I'm gonna have to go back to loan-sharking just to take a rest."

You're on your own. Here are the quotes. Do you know who said them in which movies?

1. "Every day I come by your house and I pick you up. And we go out. We have a few drinks, and a few laughs, and it's great. But you know what the best part of my day is? For about 10 seconds, from when I pull up to the curb and when I get to your door, cause I think, maybe I'll get up there and I'll knock on the door and you won't be there. No goodbye. No see you later. No nothing. You just left. I don't know much, but I know that."
2. "I love the smell of napalm in the morning."

3. "The new phone book's here! The new phone book's here! ... This is the kind of spontaneous publicity — your name in print — that makes people. I'm in print! Things are going to start happening to me now."

4. "Two dollars; I want my two dollars!"
5. "I carried a watermelon. I carried a watermelon!"
6. "You had me at 'hello.'"
7. "This week is not about me. It is about you. I'm gonna show you a good time. We're gonna drink a lot of good wine. We're gonna play some golf. We're gonna eat some great food and enjoy the scenery and we are going to send you off in style, mon frere."
8. "You can't really dust for vomit."
9. "I am NOT going to New York to meet some woman who could be a crazy, sick lunatic! Didn't you see 'Fatal Attraction'?"
10. "To infinity, and beyond!"

BONUS

Can you identify the quotes in our quiz introduction?

1. "Frankly, my dear, I don't give a damn."
2. "I see you're drinking 1 percent. Is that 'cause you think you're fat? 'Cause you're not. You could be drinking whole if you wanted to."
3. "We need to talk about your TPS reports."
4. "The time has come for someone to put his foot down. And that foot is me."
5. "The master." a reference to "Now I am the master."

Basketball has shattering end

Basketball: Forward Trizele Jones (No. 52) jumps and slams it down for the Falcons.

With the score tied, 53-53, between the Cerritos College men's basketball team and the Los Angeles Harbor Seahawks and 13:13 left on the clock, forward Antonio Hodge of the Seahawks drove down the center for a slam dunk, but only to break the backboard.

The bottom-side of the backboard was shattered and Wednesday's game was cancelled to finish on a later date.

"(I haven't seen that) in the 10 years I've been here," Gary Cain, head coach of the Falcons, said.

After the game was over, players along with people from the audience gathered around to take pictures of the broken board and the shattered glass on the floor.

"I don't see why people got hyped up about it," Cain said.

"It was a close game," Cain said. "We don't need these kind of distractions."

Cain said he was going to talk to the head coach of the Seahawks to discuss a day sometime next week that they can finish the game.

He predicted the hoop would be replaced in the next day.

Hodge said he was amazed when it happened.

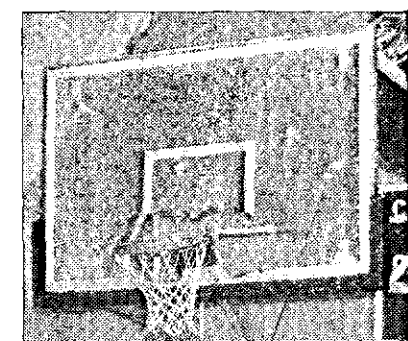

When it happened, he was thinking, "That's a different kind of noise."

"(I was) just going to go up strong," Hodge said.

The Falcons had the lead and kept it for most of the first half, but the Seahawks weren't far behind.

When the Seahawks passed the Falcons at 18-19, the lead went back and forth between them until guard Brandon Hicks scored the leading shot to end the first half at 45-42.

The Falcons kept the lead all through the second half until David Kane of the Seahawks tied the score, less than a minute before the backboard broke.

Forward Mercedes Taylor led the Falcons with 20 points as the Cerritos College women's basketball team beat Los Angeles Harbor by 48 points, 74-26, on Jan. 30 at The Aviary.

"This was a great game for us because we were able to work on some different things like playing a zone defense and were able to get some players that are nursing injuries some rest," said Karen Welliver, head coach.

The Falcons held the Seahawks to 19 percent from the field giving up only 10 points in the second half.

Taylor also led the team in rebounds with 14 and in minutes with 33.

Guard Arielle McClellan led the team with five assists.

The Falcons shot 43 percent from the field and out rebounded the Seahawks, 71-25.

The Falcons went into halftime up 51-18 and came out in the second firing.

They went up by 30 points 2 minutes and 30 seconds into the second half and went up by 40 half-way through the final half.

"We just came out in the second half and had some fun," said Rachael Butler, guard.

Butler started the second half because of an injury to the starting guard and contributed five points and four rebounds.

The Falcons are 3-0 in the South Coast Conference and have one more game before they go into the second half of conference play.

They also have an overall record of 18-8.

Guard Maltres Neely said, "Ever since the beginning of the season we knew that we would go far this year and the way we have started shows people how good we are."

In 31 minutes, she had eight points, eight rebounds and one blocked shot.

The Falcons will now play the next four games at home including Long Beach City College on Feb. 13

Then they will play their last two games on the road before the playoffs start on Feb. 27.

Kincaid attends as Cerritos baseball defeats Santa Ana, 7-6, in the bottom of the ninth

COURTESY OF THE SPORTS
INFORMATION OFFICE

There was a very special guest in attendance at the Cerritos College baseball game on Saturday afternoon.

For 22 years, Wally Kincaid was in the Falcon pinstripes, as he guided his teams to six state championships and 678 career wins.

The college eventually named the field after him, while he has since been elected to the Baseball Coaches Hall of Fame and was selected Baseball America's Coach of the Century for the 1900s.

But since his retirement after the 1980 season, he has volunteered his knowledge and services to those he coached who are now head coaches of their own.

This year, he is providing assistance at Santa Ana College (2-2), where he coached Don Sneddon, as well as Falcons (4-1) head coach Ken Gaylord, who were teammates while they both played at Cerritos under Kincaid.

The two teams put on a special show for Kincaid and the fans, as Cerritos scored the game-winning run in the bottom of the ninth inning for a 7-6 non-conference victory.

Freshman third baseman Chad Ostahowski drove in sophomore first baseman Trever Blood with the winning run on an infield single in the bottom of the ninth inning off Eric Cendejas.

Blood led off the inning by drilling a 2-2 pitch into the left-center field gap for a lead-off triple.

After sophomore shortstop Jerry Pena was intentionally walked, Ostahowski sent a ground ball up the middle where Dons second baseman Casey Rihn could not field the ball, which allowed Blood to score.

It appeared as though Santa Ana was going to break the 6-6 tie in the top of the ninth inning, until freshman left-hander Jay Heirigs came on with the bases loaded and no outs and shut them down.

Freshman Tony Peraza opened the inning by allowing a single to Travis Levenson before he was relieved by freshman Steve Blanchette.

After hitting the first batter and walking the second, Heirigs came on to face clean-up hitter Kyle Hardiman, who already had three hits on the day.

Hardiman hit a slow roller toward first base, where Blood picked up the ball and threw home to freshman catcher Mario Romero for the force out. Pinch-hitter Cory Goodchild followed by grounding into a double play to end the inning.

The lead changed hands six times on the day, with the majority of the runs coming in the latter part of the game.

Cerritos took a 5-4 lead in the bottom of the seventh inning when they scored three times, which was in direct response to the two runs Santa Ana scored in the top of the inning, thanks to a two-run double by Rihn.

With one out, freshman second baseman Brandon Pesante walked and stole second base before Blood was hit by a pitch with two outs. Pena, Ostahowski and Rodriguez each followed with run-scoring singles, which gave the team a temporary lead.

Santa Ana responded with two runs in the top of the eighth inning, with a wild pitch and an error on the same play allowing a run to score and setting up the second run. Peraza, who walked Caleb Boyer to lead off the inning, had runners at first and third with one out before he unleashed a wild pitch.

The pitch allowed pinch-runner Jake Eccles to score, while Rodriguez threw wildly trying to cut down Derek Eligio at second base after he previously singled.

With a runner at third base, James Davis gave the Dons a 6-5 lead with a sacrifice fly off Blanchette, who came on in relief.

Pesante's sacrifice fly in the bottom of the eighth tied the game, as freshman outfielder Doug Wogee was hit by a pitch, moved to second on a sacrifice bunt by Romero and advanced to third on a passed ball.

On the day, Ostahowski went 3-for-4 with two RBI, while Blood had two hits and scored twice.

For Santa Ana, Hardiman and Levenson each had two hits.

Cerritos starter Miguel Flores went the first 6 2/3 innings and allowed six hits and two runs, while striking out six.

Kyle Mertens started the Dons and pitched five innings, allowing two runs (one earned).

Tennis: Doug Edwards (left) and Jason Wall (right) are now teaming up to compete in doubles for the first time.

No. 1 and 2 singles double up

SCOTT WATKINS
Editor-in-Chief

Though neither player has played doubles tennis competitively before, Doug Edwards, the No. 1 seeded singles player and Jason Wall, the No. 2 seeded singles player, will team up to play doubles for the Ceritos College men's tennis team this season.

"We played together for fun a few times during previous year but this will be the first time we play together competitively," Wall said.

They met a few years ago through their personal coach Dan Mianzef and Wall said they just clicked.

Wall also has practiced with Sean Tan, a member of the University of Notre Dame's tennis team, whom he also met through Mianzef.

"Tan has been a big influence on my tennis career and he has helped me immensely with my doubles game," Wall said.

Edwards was the No. 1 seeded tennis player at Western High School and only lost one match in high school career.

Edwards said that the biggest adjustment for him is that in doubles, he will have to play closer to net. He considers it to be difficult because he has also been a baseline player.

Edwards has played tennis for six years, all as a singles player and knows that for the team to win his doubles game he must improve.

"In league play, the team will only go as far as the doubles teams take it," Edwards said.

Another adjustment both will face is being able to communicate effectively with each other.

"The most difficult thing for me is now where Edwards is at and adjusting with his movement," Wall said. "The only way we can do that is through effective communication"

Building the chemistry needed to be at great doubles team will also be key to the team's success.

Edwards said, "The fact that we are both freshmen helps with being able to bond with each other. We are both new and are not trying to fit in with a sophomore that is already established on the team."

Both Wall and Edwards said how excited they were because they're both freshman and will have another season to play together.

Snow at Cerritos College

The Child Development Center held its annual open house with a bit of a twist on Friday afternoon.

The attendees were welcomed to the center with free hot chocolate and some snow.

Among the attendees were students and family members from Cerritos College, faculty members from the Child Development Center and their families and other people from the community.

"We decided to bring in the snow because the children have been interested in it," said Debra Ward, director of the Child Development Center. "They have seen all the snow on the mountains and many of them have never seen it in person."

The children ran around throwing snowballs at each other and their parents.

They also took turns sliding down the hill of snow on a sled.

After they were tired from playing in the snow, they were able to sit down, watch "Happy Feet," and eat nachos and churros.

The money raised from the food sale will go back into the Child Development Center.

This was the first year that the Child Development

Center had the Snow Day as a part of its open house.

"This is kind of a pilot for the snow and next year we hope to have more," Ward said.

The Snow Day organizers asked the various departments on campus for help in getting volunteers to help and for the supplies need to put the event together.

The Audio/Visual Department provided the projector and screen for the movie, Student Activities donated the popcorn and members of the Child Development Practicum Program volunteered their time.

Maria Vallin, child development major, was one of the volunteers and said, "This a great experience to come out here and help the kids."

The facility members of the Child Development Center were kept busy but they were happy with the way everything went.

"Everyone is doing their jobs and that make it easy to pull this off," said Astrid Fiest, lead teacher of the Los Angeles Universal Preschool.

The LAUP is a program that helps low-income families have the experience of preschool before going off to kindergarten.

The Child Development Center employees have been working on organizing the event since the beginning of the year and hope that they can do this again in the future.

Watch out: An attendee of Snow Day throws a snowball during Snow Day at the Child Development Center.
